

December 2008
For Immediate Release:

SOUCY TAKES HOME SCHOLL AWARD

Air show performer Gene Soucy was named 2008 recipient of the Art Scholl Showmanship Award during the Chairman's Banquet held in conjunction with the 42nd annual International Council of Air Shows (ICAS) Convention, December 11 in Las Vegas.

Soucy was recognized for an air show career that has spanned 40 years, including more than 3,000 individual air show performances in more than a dozen different types of aircraft. A member of the legendary Eagles Aerobatic Team that flew three-ship formation aerobatics for a quarter century, Soucy has also enjoyed a long and distinguished solo career. He is a three-time national aerobatic champion and enjoys a well-deserved reputation as one of the greatest innovators in air show history.

Each year, ICAS presents the Art Scholl Showmanship Award to the air show performer who best exemplifies the qualities of showmanship demonstrated by Art Scholl. A long-time and active ICAS member, Scholl was a renowned aerobatic pilot and consummate air show performer. Although Scholl was killed in an aircraft accident in 1985, his wife Judy was on hand for the award presentation this year in Las Vegas.

Gene Soucy Airshows
Houston, TX
281-513-6590
gene@genesoucy.com
www.GeneSoucy.com

For high resolution photographs and additional information visit www.GeneSoucy.com. High resolution pictures of the award presentation are available at www.tntphoto.com/press.htm.